

INDORSE HUGHES, SET CONVENTION FOR APRIL 11TH

State Republican Committee
Asks Delegates to Meet at Carnegie Hall.

BRUCE IS TO PRESIDE.

Little Enthusiasm Shown by the Members of the Committee Over Its Action.

The Republican State Committee, which met this afternoon at headquarters in East Thirtieth street, to select a date and place for the State Convention to name delegates-at-large to the National Convention adopted, in a lukewarm, peevish spirit, a set of resolutions declaring Charles E. Hughes to be New York's favorite son. The convention will be held on April 11 at Carnegie Hall.

State Chairman Timothy L. Woodruff presided. There was a full attendance and the proceedings were brief and uneventful. A contest was expected over the naming of M. Linn Bruce as temporary chairman of the Carnegie Hall convention, but it did not materialize. Evidently the peace compact between Parsons, Odell, Woodruff and Halpin, ratified a few days ago, included the selection of Mr. Bruce and the endorsement of Gov. Hughes.

Not a Walkover.

Congressman William H. Douglas, of the Fifteenth New York District—Gov. Hughes's district—introduced the Hughes resolution. He said he wrote on the eve of a national campaign and on observant Republicans realize they are not facing the walkovers of four years ago, or eight years ago. As goes New York, said Mr. Douglas, so goes the nation. He declared that the time for the Republicans of New York to unfold their manner had arrived. "The hand of fate," he said, "has often pointed to one man at the critical hour. This is the critical hour."

Describing Roosevelt as the path-maker and Hughes as the peace-maker, Mr. Douglas offered the following resolution, which was adopted with mild applause:

"New York owns the proud position of having given to the nation one of her illustrious sons, now occupying the Presidential chair. Few, if any, Presidents, have ever been held in so high a regard by the nation and the world. He has done great service to his country by a rugged determination to oppose wrongdoing and in demanding justice for all. We can never repay the debt of gratitude we owe to our Governor of our State, Hon. Charles E. Hughes, for the Presidency."

He is a man of the Lincoln type, fearless in duty and devoted to the people's best interests. Since he has been President, he has before the public his strong individuality has greatly impressed us all. In all his public utterances he carries conviction by his evident sincerity and the unquestionable purity of his motives. In placing his name before the country as our standard-bearer we are convinced we are presenting another great leader to the nation, and one who will add additional glory to our State and uphold the position of the Republican party."

Resolved, that we recommend the election of delegates in the various Congressional districts and of delegates at large who will act in complete harmony with the purpose of this resolution, to the end that the delegation at the National Convention from this State may present a united front in behalf of our candidate."

He Praises Hughes.
The citizens of the Empire State very properly expect the National Convention will present and urge the selection again of one of our illustrious sons for the great office of President of the United States. The State Committee believes that the wisdom of our choice will be the wisdom of the nation. We earnestly advocate the selection of our Governor of our State, Hon. Charles E. Hughes, for the Presidency."

BABY BORN ON SOUND BOAT.
Eleven-Pound Girl's Arrival on Providence Causes Cheers.

While the Fall River liner Providence was approaching New York to-day there was mysterious activity near the ladies' cabin that drew curious men in that direction. Summary orders from one woman for all male passengers and crew to vacate the lower saloon sent the men together on the upper deck.

When the same Napoleonic little woman shortly afterward told the captain that an eleven-pound girl was born, the vessel's crew and passengers cheered for both the babe and the mother.

The mother is Mrs. Roca Copelan, twenty-four years old, of No. 59 Royal street, Fall River, Mass.

Quick Relief for Those Who Need Workers

There's an easy and a difficult way in any undertaking. Thousands of houseworkers, cooks, waitresses, maids, etc., will give up their positions to-night, and as many housewives in Greater New York will face the problem of finding somebody to take their places. Employers who neglect to act at once will be put to inconvenience before they find the workers they need. To avoid such unnecessary trouble see to it that your "Help Wanted" advertisement is printed in the Sunday World to-morrow.

"You've Got 'Em All Skinned, and the Bowery's With You!" Tom Ronan, Depew of Sullivan District, Told Mr. Roosevelt

President Glad to See Him, Said He Thought a Lot of the Bowery and Showed His Teeth in Enthusiasm.

HE MAY LOOK CRAZY TO
"THEM FINAN-SEERS."

But Tom Found Him "Fancy, Fat and Fine" and Fit to Fight Corporations and "the Rest of Them Thieves," and No Coward.

"Yes, sir, Ruus-velt is a great man—a very great man. And, say, he looks fancy, fat and fine fighting the corporations and the rest of them thieves."

Tom Ronan, the "Bowery Depew," relaxed his face into a thousand little wrinkles that crumpled it like a piece of crushed paper.

"That's one idea I brought back from my trip to Washington," Tom added, and huzzed his knee and rocked back and forth on the edge of the narrow bed in his tiny hall room at No. 403 West Nineteenth street, as he thought of his week's vacation from the United States Weiklers' place and how he had spent it. He called on the President, and saw the Treasury, and met Senators, all—but let him tell it.

"Well, honest and true, I do believe that Ruus-velt was glad to see me," said Tom. "He knew me when I came in as well as if it was only yesterday that his overcoat was wiped off the back of a truck when I was stumbling the Bowery and him running for Governor."

"Well, Tom," says he, "when I reminded him of it, I guess the poor devil needed it more than I did, and we both laughed. And says I, 'You got 'em all skinned. Just keep on the way you're going and the country's with you, and the Bowery, too.' And, says he, 'Tom, he says, 'I think a whole lot of the Bowery.' And, says I, 'There's many good men there, Mr. President. I know that,' says he. And then, says I, 'There's a whole houseful of boys of mine, Mr. President, that want you for a third term, and a lot of grandchild-dren, too, that'll be voting for you for a fifth term.'"

May Look Crazy—to Financiers.
"And he laughed and showed his teeth just like he does in the cartoons, and I came away feeling pretty big and went over to the Na-a-tional Hotel and had a drink and thought, Well, the country's safe while that man's at the head of it."

"Why is Teddy a big man? I'll tell you. He's a fighter, and God Almighty loves a fighter and the people love a coward, and that's why Teddy's the whole thing in this country to-day."

"Dr. Hamilton says he's crazy," remarked a bystander.

A fine look of scorn came over Tom's face and he carefully adjusted his iron-rimmed spectacles before he replied: "Yes, I guess he looks crazy to Morgan and that bunch. Why, say, I've noticed them finan-seers, and wouldn't give a good bunch of fellows like you'll meet in Mike Hine's place on the Bowery any night for a whole kettle of 'em."

No Fancy Towels on His Bureau.
"There's no place like the Bowery, young fellow, I'll tell you," resumed Tom. "As Tim Sullivan says, I'd rather be a lamp-post on the Bowery than a Congressman in Washington. I say myself that I'd rather carry the banner in New York than own the Washington Monument. I'm living here just now just because my son got sick a while ago and I moved up here to keep him company. Now he's gone back to the country. I've moved into this small room because I'm a man of simple tastes, but soon I'll go back to the Bowery. I've spent the best part of sixty years there, except when I was Alderman up in Bridgeport, and I want to die there."

"You see, I'm a man that's easily pleased. What do you think?" The landlady here put up some fancy towels on the bureau and I had a terrible time to get her to take 'em out. Now I see that while I was in Washington she's been and put up lace curtains. Well, they'll have to go, too.

"A man doesn't need all that stuff. Lots of bread and coffee and meat and a warm place to sleep and good, warm clothes—that's all a man needs, and the course the Four Hundred can have towels on the bureau and the backs of the chairs if they want to, but give me a plain old Bowery lodging-house. Good Society in Bowery Lodging Houses."

"Why, them places is cleaner than the Waldorf, and I know what I'm talking about. Bums don't go to lodging-houses. There's Harvard and Yale graduates in Bowery lodging-houses, and better company around the stove."

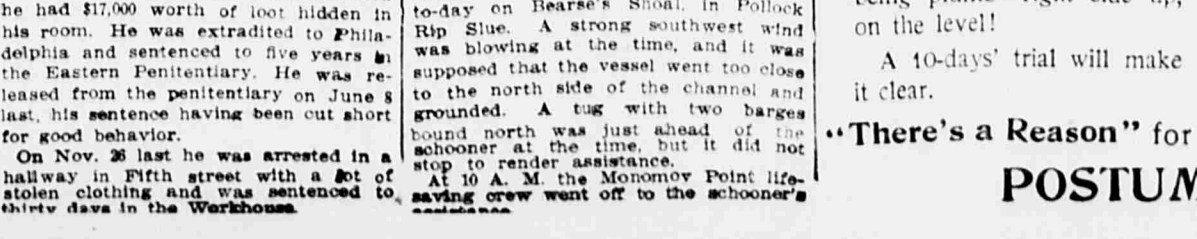

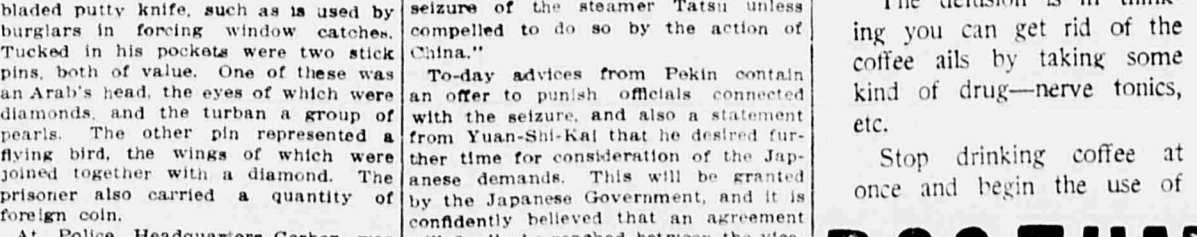

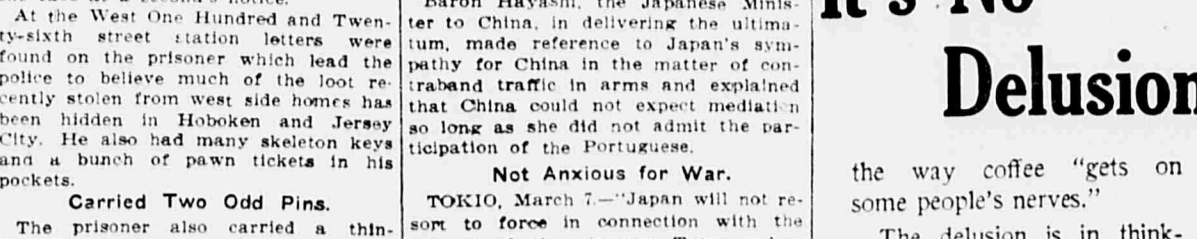

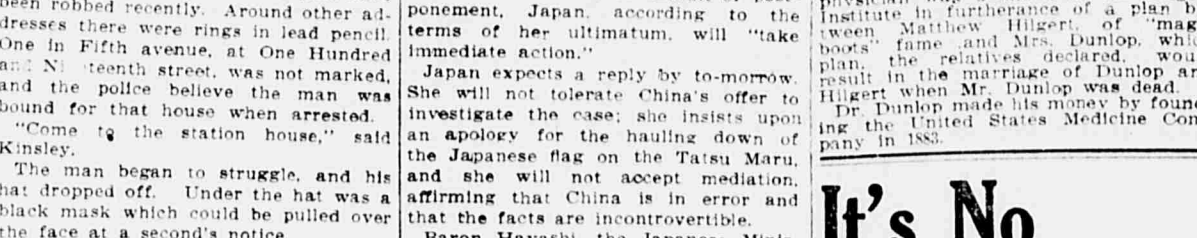

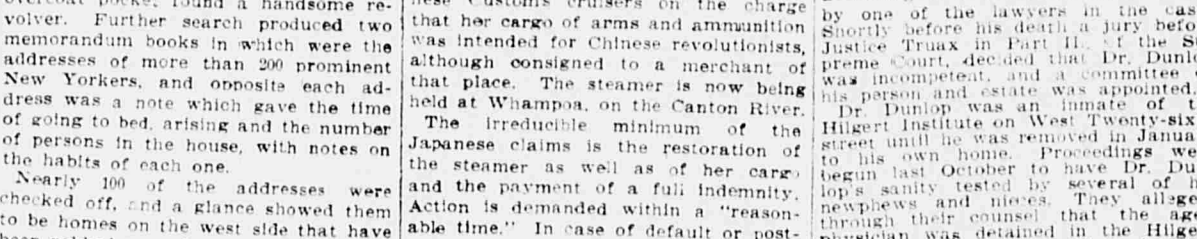

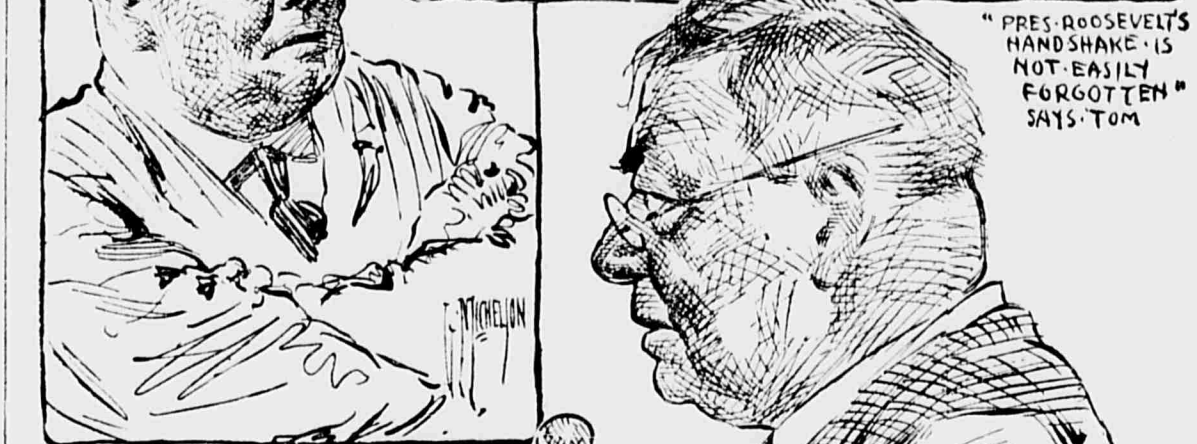

Mrs. Charles W. Morse is selling her beautiful $15,000 sable cape for $7,000. This is the financially embarrassed rich shedding their luxuries. "It is easier to have had and lost than never to have had at all," smilingly said Mrs. Morse to a friend of her husband, who complimented the sale of the former Ice King for her loyalty to her husband in the hours of his financial stress.

The fact that Mrs. Morse was selling her sable cape came to light by accident. For a number of days Mr. Morse has been in conference with Receiver Hannan of the National Bank of North America, to which bank he owes $24,000. During the former Ice King's stay he was provided by the Federal official with a peck of his good faith, and the genuineness of statements which he made concerning his resources.

"Do you suppose I would let Mrs. Morse sell her $15,000 sable cape for $7,000 if it was not dealing squarely with my creditors?" Morse is reported to have retorted.

Mr. Morse was asked about the comment he made concerning the sable cape, he said: "I do not think the public's business. I am being persistently misrepresented by the newspapers, and I have nothing to say. Mrs. Morse has been my staunch helpmate, and I am not ashamed of it."

SPOOKS FURNISH CLUES IN BAKER POISONING CASE

Mediums and Clairvoyants Started Dead Man's Brother on Investigation.

In compliance with the provision of the law requiring a coroner's jury to view the body of the subject of an inquest the jury impaneled by Coroner DeMund, of Ridgewood, N. J., viewed the body of Walter Farnsworth Baker to-day. The body had been in Fell's undertaking establishment in Ridgewood since Jan. 28, when it was brought from Boston.

No one in Ridgewood outside of the undertaker, Prosecutor Koester and the Coroner knew that Baker's body had been brought from Boston until the fact was announced in The World yesterday. The inquest will begin next Tuesday. Prosecutor Koester has been placed in possession of a mass of evidence procured by Edward F. Baker, brother of the dead man, tending to show that Walter Baker died of arsenic poisoning. This evidence will be presented to the jury.

Irrespective of what action the Coroner's jury takes, the same evidence, with what additional may be gathered in the mean time, will be placed before the Bergen County Grand Jury, which convenes April 7. It is stated that much of the evidence to be presented by Edward F. Baker was gathered on clues furnished by clairvoyants and trance mediums in Boston.

Mr. Baker's interest in the manner of the death of his brother is sharpened by the fact that the disposition of $20,000 of Walter Baker's estate will largely rest upon the report of the Coroner's jury. The situation is further complicated by the fact that a few days ago of Natalie Hurd, the little girl to whom Baker willed his money.

The inquest, which has been held long ago but for the illness of the Hurd child. All was in readiness when she was stricken with scarlet fever. As her father and mother, at whose home Baker died, are material witnesses, Coroner DeMund postponed the investigation.

NEARLY EVERY WOMAN WOULD FEEL better for a Cascaret every day.

Women exercise less than men.

That's why they need help most.

A woman moved into a new flat with a bath room, and she said to a visitor: "You don't know how anxious I am for Saturday night. I want to take a bath."

That's what some of us do with our bowels.

We get into the habit of periodical cleansing. And we never realize how much better it is to give a little help every day.

That's the reason for Cascarets.

To give you a convenient vest-pocket laxative, the action of which is natural and gentle as the action of laxative foods.

They are not like the old-time physics—castor oil, salts and cathartics. We took them only when we were forced to.

We let matters run until the bowels were clogged, and we were miserable.

Today we keep at our best.

The way is to take one Cascaret just as soon as you know that you need it. The results are as pleasant as the dose.

Those who exercise enough, and eat coarse food and plenty of fruit, don't need them.

All others do need them. Cascarets do just what Nature does for those who live in a natural way.

Cascarets are candy tablets. They are sold by all druggists, but never in bulk. Be sure you get the genuine, with CCC on every tablet. The price is 50 cents, 25 cents and 10 cents.

ULTIMATUM SENT CHINA BY JAPAN IN SHIP SEIZURE

Immediate Reparation for Insult to Flag Demanded in Official Note.

PEKING, March 7.—Japan's ultimatum in the case of the Japanese steamer Tatsu Maru was presented to the head of the Chinese Foreign Board yesterday, and to-day the Board has the matter under consideration.

The Tatsu Maru was seized off Macao on Feb. 7 by Chinese Customs cruisers on the charge that it was carrying arms and ammunition. It was intended for Chinese revolutionists, although consigned to a merchant of that place. The steamer is now being held at Whampoa on the Canton River.

The irreducible minimum of the Japanese claims is the restoration of the steamer as well as of her cargo and the payment of a full indemnity. Action is demanded within a "reasonable time." In case of default or postponement, Japan, according to the terms of her ultimatum, will "take immediate action."

Japan expects a reply by to-morrow. She will not tolerate China's offer to investigate the case, she insists upon an apology for the hauling down of the Japanese flag on the Tatsu Maru, and she will not accept mediation, affirming that China is in error and that the facts are incontrovertible.

Baron Hayashi, the Japanese Minister to China, in delivering the ultimatum, made reference to Japan's sympathy for China in the matter of contraband traffic in arms and explained that China could not expect mediation so long as she did not admit the participation of the Portuguese.

Not Anxious for War.
TOKIO, March 7.—Japan will not resort to force in connection with the seizure of the steamer Tatsu Maru unless compelled to do so by the action of China.

To-day's advice from Peking contain an offer to punish the Chinese agent at the seizure, and also a statement from Yuan Shi-Kai that he desired further time for consideration of the Japanese demands. This will be granted by the Japanese Government, and it is confidently believed that an agreement will finally be reached between the Secretary of Canton and the Central Government.

LIFE-SAVERS OFF TO AID CREW OF STRANDED SHIP.

CHATHAM, Mass., March 7.—A four-masted schooner, heavily laden and bound north, went ashore at 9.30 A. M. to-day on Bear's Shoal, in Pollock Rip. She was strong, southwest wind was blowing at the time, and it was supposed that the vessel went too close to the north side of the channel and grounded. A tug with two barges bound north was just ahead of the schooner at the time, but it did not stop to render assistance.

At 10 A. M. the Monomoy Point life-saving crew went off to the schooner's aid.
